Indications:

Apoptus® is a nutritional supplement containing extract of fermented wheat germ. This is created by a biotechnological process that provides a source of biologically active components that improve the immune response.

Apoptus® is indicated for pets that are under treatment for cancer by surgery, chemotherapy or immunotherapy. It is also used as nutritional support in conditions where it is important to strengthen the immune system.

Apoptus® is a dietary treatment that does not replace or substitute for any medication or cancer treatment.

Target species: Dogs and cats

Dose:

As a dietary supplement for improved overall health, 1 tablet per day is recommended per 10 kg. As an adjunct to treatment with chemotherapy and / or after surgery, the recommended dose is 1 tablet per 5 kg of weight that can be doubled if necessary and always under veterinary criterion.

Apoptus® should be taken continuously over the course of cancer treatment. Subsequently, can be used as maintenance dose of 1 tablet per 10 Kg.

The tablets are administered directly into the mouth. They can also easily disintegrate by simply tightening between the fingers and can be mixed with food if needed.

Contraindications:

Do not administer if fructose intolerance or to any of the product components.

Adverse effects:

Rather infrequently, softer stools may occur.

Interactions:

Apoptus® should not be taken 2 hours before or after any preparation containing vitamin C. To avoid any interactions with other medications, Apoptus® should not be given 2 hours before or after administration of any medication.

The administration of omega 3 together with Apoptus®, enhances the effect of the product

Conservation:

Always Keep closed in a cool, dry place.
